Principal's Report

Welcome to Term Two everyone! I trust that everyone had a relaxing Term One holiday and Easter break!

ANZAC Day Assembly

On Monday we will enjoy a special ANZAC Day assembly thanks to our SRC and Student Leaders, who will lead our whole school through a special commemorative service at 2.40pm in our school hall. All welcome to attend - we look forward to seeing you!

Prep 2025 Enrolment

Prep 2025 school enrolments are now open!

If you have a child at home due to commence prep in 2025, please contact our school office so you can access all relevant enrolment information.

The Department of Education has a new Prep Enrolment process, which includes Prep 2025 enrolment timeline closure as of Term 3 July 28 2023.

We look forward to your contact and enrolment of your new addition to our school for next year!

Mothers Day / Special Person Day Celebrations

Book the date into your calendars for special Mothers Day / Special Person Day celebrations in the classrooms.

Join your child/children for some time enjoying some special activities within the classroom.

- Thursday 9th May 9 - 11am

More information to come from classes.

150 Birthday Celebrations

We (Frankston PS) are turning 150 years old this year on November 1st! What an amazing milestone for our school serving our community throughout this period. What changes our school has seen through this time and so many people through this period have been connected, have amazing memories and stories and have loved our school through this time.

Look out for upcoming information on our birthday celebrations!

Message from the Education Minister

The Education Minister, Hon. Ben Carroll, has created a video message to all parents and carers across Victorian state schools, reflecting his passion for schools, learning and working with parents and carers in supporting the best educational outcomes for all students.

Student Wellbeing

Whole School Incursion - Social Emotional Learning

We are pleased to advise that all of our students will enjoy a whole school incursion focusing on building and supporting important social and emotional learning skills and understandings.

Brainstorm Productions are an educational performance company who specialise their performances around key social and emotional learnings for children. They are fun, upbeat and engaging for students of all ages - our students will love it! Following this performance our teachers will extend students' learning within the classroom with activities that will reinforce and extend student learning.

WHO: Brainstorm Productions Incursion

WHEN: TUESDAY 21ST MAY 12.15PM—1.15PM

FOCUS: Promoting resilience, cyber safety and Anti-bullying.

I am really pleased to advise that Frankston Primary School is covering the cost of this incursion through funding that the school has received in supporting positive mental health in children.

seeing all of their amazing dance moves.

Performing Arts Incursion - Term 3 - Footsteps

Our school has a new whole school Performing Arts incursion scheduled for all students in Term 3.

This Performing Arts incursion will run for 10 weeks throughout the term every Tuesday and is run by Footsteps - a company that specialises in building dance performance in students.

Students will participate in one session each week for Term 3, in addition to their Performing Arts specialist class, learning different types of dances across each year level. We will see these amazing dance routines as they form a part of our Whole School Production performance at the end of Term 3 - performed at the Frankston Arts Centre.

The cost for this incursion for each student is $44.00.

Footsteps build dance as a vehicle supporting students' social skills, confidence and creativity. Students experience various dance styles including hip hop, funk, modern pop, contemporary, partner and various multicultural dances from around the world. Footsteps utilises dance in promoting positive social interactions, building confidence as well as improving fitness, coordination and gross motor skills.

We are really looking forward to this new opportunity for our students and seeing all of their amazing dance moves.

Art Therapy

We are lucky to have been able to access further funding from School Focused Youth Service.

In 2023 we were able to support selected 5/6 students through a short term Martial Arts Therapy Program.

This year we have been able to access funding to run an 8 week Art Therapy Program - building and utilising the creativity of art in supporting student wellbeing.

Student Wellbeing Support - Youth Worker

We are also thrilled to share that we have been able to staff our Student Wellbeing Support Youth Worker funding position for this year. Jackie Aitken joins our team two days a week as an additional team member supporting student health, wellbeing and social and emotional development.

Student Free Day Reminder

A reminder that our next scheduled Student Free Day is next week, followed by ANZAC Day.

- Wednesday 24th April - Curriculum Day
- Thursday 25th April ANZAC Day public holiday.

This is a scheduled day through the Education Department in support of teachers collaborating to plan for high quality learning teaching, view student progress and plan for next steps in their learning and preparing for student mid year reporting.

Student Learning

Student Learning Progress - Term Two

Term Two Student Learning Progress areas of learning in Reading and Mathematics have been sent home to parents and carers this week through Class Dojo.

The information sent home to parents shows key learning focus areas that your child will be building and developing through this learning period.

Student Learning Progress Reports

- Provide an overview of areas of learning in Reading and Mathematics for students for this current period
- Will provide a guide as to how your child is progressing in their learning and will guide their Semester One Mid Year Report at the end of Term Two.

Student Learning Progress Reports are an important link of communication to parents in how your child is progressing towards their learning goals.

- A reminder that parent-teacher interviews for Semester One are held at the start of Term Three. With further communication about these later in the term.

We have had a great first week of Term Two - with all students settling back into school routine smoothly. We are looking forward to a great term!

Wishing everyone a happy weekend!

Warm regards,

Renée Kennedy

2024 Parent and Carer Curriculum Contribution Payment

Dear Parent/Carer,

In October last year, families were sent information re Frankston Primary School 2024 Parent Curriculum Contribution payment.

Financial support from families through the Parent Curriculum Contribution payment assists our school in offering the best possible resources and support for our students. This Parent Payment makes a huge difference to our school, and we would like to thank families who have already made this yearly payment this year.

On-going financial support from our parents and carers has allowed our school to:

- Maintain our high-quality grounds and facilities, including employment of grounds maintenance person.
- Continue our ICT device lease across Prep – Grade 6
- Buy new sports equipment.
- Purchase new literacy texts for student reading Years 3 – 6
- Purchase new maths equipment to support student learning Prep – 6
- Purchase student wellbeing materials in support of positive student emotional and social learning.

If you are yet to make this Parent Payment for 2024, this may be made in cash or Eftpos through the front office, or online through direct deposit or Bpay.

For direct deposit or Bpay information, please contact our front office and speak to Jo Corrigan or Mel Taylor.

We thank you kindly for your ongoing support of our school.

Kind regards,

Renée Kennedy

WELLBEING

SOCIAL CONNECTIONS WITH SCHOOL AGE KIDS

Family relationships are still the biggest influence on your school age child's development. Fitting in with friends and finding positive role models are also important, and you are also able to support your child with these parts of their social and emotional development.

Understanding school-age children:

At school, your child is busy learning and making friends. This includes trying to understand the rules of life, learning about manners, values and what's right and wrong, and finding role models like teachers and other trusted grown-ups. At the same time, your child's brain is developing rapidly, bringing increased emotional maturity, social skills and thinking abilities. Even with all these new influences, your home life and family relationships are still the biggest influence on your child's development. Your relationship might change a little bit because you're spending less time together – your child might even prefer a wave to a public kiss goodbye – but your job as a parent is just as important as ever.

Developing your child's social skills

When children start school, they're entering the wider social world. Your child will be thinking about finding their own place, fitting in with friends and feeling part of a larger social group. Although you're not there when your child is at school, there's still a lot you can do to help them develop their social skills:

- Help your child make friends by encouraging them to play with other children outside school hours, have sleepovers, and join clubs and groups.
- Help your child develop conversation skills like asking questions and listening to other children. You can be a role model for these skills in conversations with your child.
- Help your child understand the kinds of comments that might upset others, lead to teasing and that get in the way of making friends – for example, 'Your hair is always messy'.
- Help your child develop empathy and understand different points of view by getting them to describe their own feelings and by talking about other people's feelings.
- Suggest how your child could handle different situations at school with their friends – for example, 'Maybe if you shared your new toy it might help', or 'Smiling makes people feel happier. It helps if you smile when you first meet people'.

Helping your school-age child understand rules and values

- Explain why things are considered right and wrong, and why some behaviour isn't tolerated at all in society – for example, teasing and stealing.
- Encourage a sense of compassion and empathy by saying things like 'Imagine if you were that person right now'.
- Play games with rules that include elements of both chance and skill. Let your child win some of the time but remember that losing is also important. It helps your child learn to deal with disappointment.
- Discuss the idea of values with your child. Share your own personal and family values. You can also talk about broader community and Australian values.

Children and fair play

Playing fair is about learning the rules of the game and putting them into practice – whether they're special family rules for card or board games, or the rules at Saturday football. This way, everyone gets to enjoy the experience. In some games, you can make up new rules. This can be a great way for children to learn about solving problems together and being flexible. Fair play is also about learning social rules, like taking turns and being polite. For children, it might mean helping out another child who's having trouble with the game, or giving others a fair go at winning.

Helping your child with fair play:

You can use the following tips to help children of any age learn about fair play and enjoying the game.

Consider the age of your child:

Children can learn about fair play more easily when the game is suitable for their age. For example, children younger than 6-7 years find it hard to understand formal rules. Simple games that give each child a turn can work well for younger children – for example, Snakes and ladders. Short waiting times can help too.

Give your child the chance to play lots of different games:

The more experience and practice the better. Try board and ball games, competitive games of skill like chess, competitive games of chance, and cooperative games like charades. Even make believe games can help children practise taking turns.

Find a range of playmates:

It's good for your child to play with children who are older or younger. For example, your child can learn to look out for younger children and maybe show them the rules. Older children can also be good role models for younger children.

Go over the rules of the game:

Before the game starts, make sure everyone knows the rules. The younger the child, the simpler the rules need to be.

Introduce some social rules:

These could be rules about taking turns and congratulating other people when they win.

Give feedback:

Praise your child for sharing, taking turns and other examples of playing fair. Point out what your child did well. For example, you might say, 'I thought it was great the way you shook hands with the other team at the end of the game'.

Whether or not it is the influences of past events, limited social interactions or personal trauma, we are seeing a greater need to support the emotional and social learning and regulation of our students.

At Frankston Primary School our staff are working hard to implement our Respectful Relationships Curriculum by integrating it with valuable Circle Time Check Ins that help facilitate discussions about values and social interactions with others.

With continued focus on our Restorative Practice approaches and the support of our families in the work you do in developing your child's social skills, we will continue helping our children to develop positive relationships amongst one another.

Every child is unique and has their own talents, interests and aspirations and it is important for them all to feel valued and respected by others.

Frankston Primary School values each and every one of our students and promote that 'kindness triumphs' and that 'random acts of kindness' can make someone's day.

Can you remember a time when someone did something for you that wasn't asked for or expected and it brightened your day? When did you last show a random act of kindness? Did it make you feel good too?

Feel free to share this with us on Dojo, it would be lovely to hear about your experiences.

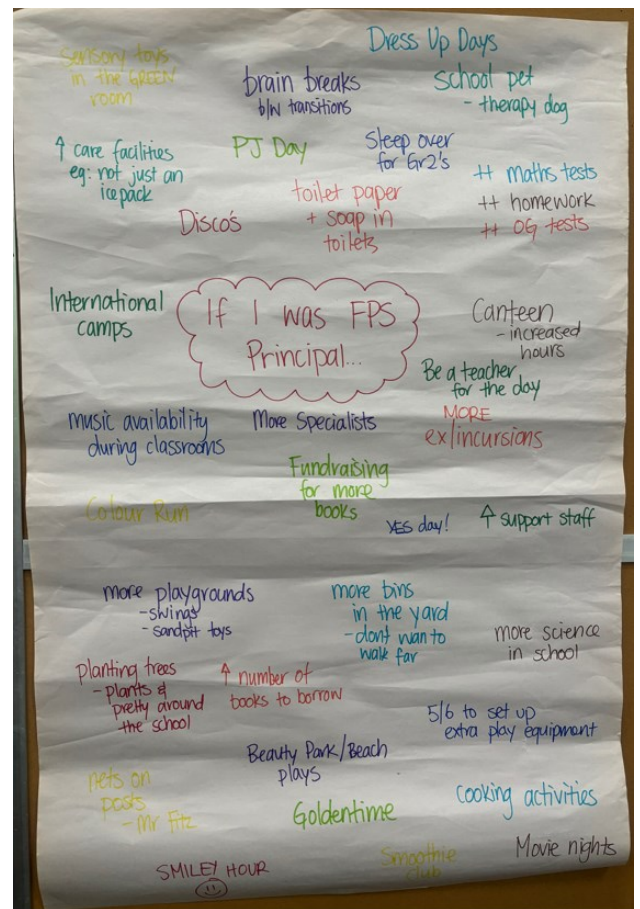

'Friends Learning Together' is a great motto!

SRC DAY!

On the 17th April, the SRC team met for a full day of leadership and planning with Mrs Drake. It was a long but productive day! We looked into what our SRC does, what a 'Good Leader' looks like and if we were Mrs Kennedy, what changes would we make to better our students. We brainstormed games for Lunchtime Clubs, talked about how the SRC can bring students voice into everything. We then planned the assembly for ANZAC day and other special days/activities that will be run by the SRC students throughout the year.

We are feeling very excited to see what 2024 brings.

"I am excited to be my class SRC representative because..."
